Sermon Notes – The Pattern of Being Set Apart (Sanctified)

2 Corinthians 13:1-10

By Pastor Phil Yoder

Christians are “little Christs” who seek to imitate Him. Qualities of these “little Christs” include disciplined lives, proper authority, authentic faith and obedient integrity.

D_____ lives (13:1-2)
 The proper m_____

The proper m_____

Proper A_____ (13:3-4)
 Authentic F_____ (13:5-6)
 The call to g_____ faith
 The b_____ of genuine faith
 O_____ I_____ (13:7-10)

HUG Discussion Questions:

1. Why is the testimony of two or three witnesses required?
2. Why self-examine rather than another examining you?
3. What evidence might there be when a person fails tests?
4. What is the proof (vs. 9) that Paul loves them?
5. Who and when can you build someone up this week?

If Jesus Christ is in you, how will the self-examination turn out?

Political and Familial Communications: Matthew 21

by Jeff Way

I was thinking about how we can improve communications within our church family and overall. During my devotionals I had been reading Matthew 21 and found the passage of verses 23 through 27 especially pertinent during the seemingly endless process of hearing political rhetoric. I have consistently observed that many politicians will often not answer direct questions. This is the situation that occurred when Jesus was asked by the chief priests & elders to reveal the authority by which he performed his signs and wonders. Jesus replied by asking them a question regarding John's baptism and whether or not it was from heaven or human origin. He said that he would tell them his authority source if they answered that question. Their answer was long in coming since they were equivocating between truth and their own agenda and ended up saying, "We don't know." They ended up missing out in hearing Jesus answer to them.

Likewise, I have found myself in some situations with my wife, Linda in which she will ask me a question and I will think of all the reasons for my answer and then proceed to tell her all those reasons while not answering her question directly. By the time I get to my answer, she may have given up waiting for my answer and I miss out on the interaction with her. I've been trying to retrain myself and circumvent my engineering tendency to think of every small detail that may affect the answer before responding. This has forced me to think about my own behavior and how I can change myself to be a more effective communicator. I'm looking forward to answering your questions more directly and not missing out on your response!

After service, please stay for refreshments and fellowship.
